RE: MUR 6924

Dear Mr. Cayetano:

On August 17, 2017, the Federal Election Commission reviewed the allegations in your complaint dated March 5, 2015, and found that on the basis of the information provided in your complaint, there is no reason to believe Andrew Winer, Pacific Resource Partnership, John White, as treasurer, the Democratic Party of Hawaii, and Friends of Mazie Hirono, Carol Puetto as treasurer, violated 52 U.S.C. §§ 30116 or 30118. Furthermore on that same date, the Commission dismissed the allegation that the Democratic Party of Hawaii violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125. Accordingly, on August 17, 2017, the Commission closed the file in this matter.

Documents related to the case will be placed on the public record within 30 days. See Disclosure of Certain Documents in Enforcement and Other Matters, 81 Fed. Reg. 50,702 (Aug. 2, 2016), effective September 1, 2016. The Factual and Legal Analyses, which more fully explain the Commission's findings are enclosed.

The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended, allows a complainant to seek judicial review of the Commission's dismissal of this action. See 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(8).

Sincerely,

Lisa J. Stevenson

7 RESPONDENT: The Democratic Party of Hawaii

8
9
10 I. INTRODUCTION

11 This matter involves an allegation that Pacific Resource Partnership and John White in 12 his capacity as treasurer ("PRP State PAC"), a Hawaii state political committee, coordinated a
13 2012 independent expenditure campaign with the Democratic Party of Hawaii ("the State Party")
14 and Friends of Mazie Hirono and Carol Puetto in her capacity as treasurer ("Hirono 15 Committee"), the principal campaign committee for U.S. Senate candidate Mazie Hirono, in 16 violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the "Act"). The allegation
17 is based on the fact that one individual, Andrew Winer, worked as a political consultant for PRP
18 State PAC, the State Party, and the Hirono Committee. The complaint appears to further allege 19 that the State Party violated the Act by paying Winer with nonfederal, as opposed to federal, 20 funds.<sup>1</sup>

21 As discussed below, the available evidence does not suggest that the communications in 22 question were in-kind contributions in the form of coordinated communications. Further, the 23 record does not appear to support the allegation that the State Party improperly paid Winer with 24 non-federal funds. Accordingly, the Commission finds no reason to believe that Winer, PRP
25 State PAC, the State Party, and the Hirono Committee violated 52 U.S.C. §§ 30116 or 30118.

The Commission also dismisses the allegation that the State Party violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125, and closes the file.

II. FACTS

During the 2012 election cycle, political consultant Andrew Winer worked on campaigns for three different political organizations in Hawaii: PRP State PAC, a non-candidate political committee organized under Hawaii state election law;<sup>2</sup> the State Party; and the Hirono Committee.<sup>3</sup> Winer was a paid consultant for PRP State PAC and “performed a variety of services,” including helping to “develop its messaging in an independent expenditure campaign” in support of Kirk Caldwell in his race for mayor of Honolulu.<sup>4</sup> The strategy included a series of communications contrasting Caldwell and his opponent, including a door hanger and mailers which urged support for the “Democratic team” and featured images of Caldwell, President Obama, and Hirono (the “PRP Communications”).<sup>5</sup> According to PRP State PAC, the purpose of the PRP Communications, which were distributed in October and November 2012, was to use Obama and Hirono to get frequent voters to support Caldwell in the mayoral election.<sup>6</sup> PRP State PAC allocated the costs of the PRP Communications among the mentioned candidates and reported the federal portion, which it calculated at approximately $122,138, as independent expenditures in support of Obama and Hirono on FEC Form 5.<sup>7</sup>

1 In addition to his ongoing work for PRP State PAC, Winer began working for the State
2 Party as a consultant on its "Coordinated Campaign" following the August 2012 primary
3 election.<sup>8</sup> In this capacity, Winer was charged with "organizing and mobilizing volunteers to 4 canvass specific neighborhoods as well as organize sign-waving events," analyzing and targeting 5 precincts "where efforts were needed to support democratic candidates," and organizing 6 "meetings on get-out-the-vote ('GOTV') strategies to encourage a strong democratic turnout for 7 the general election and to ensure the success of the democratic ticket at the polls."<sup>9</sup> The State
8 Party states that it retained Winer as an independent consultant, not as an employee, and that it
9 allocated Winer's consulting fees according to his work on behalf of both federal and state
10 candidates.<sup>10</sup> According to the State Party, Winer's work on the Coordinated Campaign
11 benefited four federal candidates (including Hirono) and approximately 49 state candidates.<sup>11</sup> 12 The State Party states that it was not involved in the non-partisan Honolulu mayoral race or in 13 PRP State PAC's campaign on behalf of Caldwell.<sup>12</sup>

14 In addition to his consulting work for the State Party and PRP State PAC, Winer was also 15 involved in some capacity with the Hirono campaign. The complaint states that Winer was a 16 "senior advisor."<sup>13</sup> The Hirono Committee, PRP State PAC, and Winer all state that Winer was

4 Hirono Committee's behalf.<sup>15</sup>

5 III. LEGAL ANALYSIS

6 A. Coordinated Communications

7 The complaint alleges that as a result of Winer's position as a vendor of political 8 consulting services to PRP State PAC, the State Party, and the Hirono Committee, the PRP
9 Communications were coordinated communications.<sup>16</sup> PRP State PAC and the Hirono
10 Committee each deny that there was a coordinated communication because the conduct prong of 11 the Commission's coordinated communication regulation was not met.<sup>17</sup> The State Party
12 generally denies the existence of any coordination between itself and PRP State PAC or the 13 Hirono Committee.<sup>18</sup> Winer filed a response that incorporates in its entirety the PRP State PAC 14 Response.<sup>19</sup>

<sup>14</sup> The Hirono Committee reported one disbursement to Andrew Winer during the 2012 election cycle: $1,122.35 for "Reimb – Refreshments for event" on September 19, 2012.

<sup>16</sup> Compl. at 1, 4-5. The complaint also discusses a defamation lawsuit and alleged state-level reporting violations, neither of which is covered by the Act. Compl. at 2-3. The supplemental complaint, filed on June 9, 2015, suggests several potential witnesses that could aid the Commission in an investigation of this matter. It does not add any respondents or allegations. See Supp. Compl. at 1.

1 The Act prohibits corporations from making contributions, including in-kind 2 contributions, to federal candidates and their authorized committees.<sup>20</sup> Correspondingly, federal 3 candidates and their authorized committees may not knowingly accept a corporate contribution.<sup>21</sup> 4 An expenditure made by any person "in cooperation, consultation, or concert, with, or at the 5 request or suggestion of, a candidate, authorized political committee, or a national or state party 6 committee constitutes an in-kind contribution."<sup>22</sup> An expenditure for a communication is 7 coordinated when the communication is (1) paid for, in whole or part, by a person other than the 8 candidate, committee, or party; (2) satisfies at least one of the content standards described in 11 9 C.F.R. § 109.21(c); and (3) satisfies at least one of the conduct standards described in 11 C.F.R.
10 § 109.21(d).<sup>23</sup>

11 The first (payment) prong is satisfied here because PRP State PAC, a third party, paid for 12 the PRP Communications.<sup>24</sup> The second (content) prong is also satisfied because the PRP
13 Communications are public communications<sup>25</sup> that expressly advocate the election of three 14 individuals, two of whom (Hirono and President Obama) were federal candidates.<sup>26</sup>

<sup>25</sup> "Public communication" includes a "mass mailing," which means a mailing of more than 500 pieces of substantially identical mail within a 30-day period. Id. §§ 100.26, 100.27. PRP reported $122,138.12 in "postage and printing" for independent expenditures from October 4, 2012, through November 2, 2012. FEC Form 5 of PRP, January 31 Year-End Report at 2-5. Presumably, that amount covered more than 500 pieces of mail.

<sup>26</sup> 11 C.F.R. § 109.21(c)(3). PRP states in its response that the PRP Communications "were not intended to influence any federal election" even though they "technically advocated for a vote for the two federal candidates." PRP Resp. at 6-7. PRP previously reported the PRP Communications to the Commission as independent expenditures, and we agree with its initial determinations. See FEC Form 5, 24/48 Hour Reports of PRP (October 4, 11, 24, 24, and November 12, 2012); January 31 Year-End Report of PRP at 2-5.

1 The conduct prong is not satisfied, however, because we have no information – beyond
2 the mere fact of an independent contractor relationship with Winer – suggesting that the State
3 Party or the Hirono Committee was involved with the PRP Communications. Although it
4 appears that Winer was materially involved in decisions regarding the creation, production, and 5 distribution of the PRP Communications (such as the content, intended audience, and means of 6 communications),<sup>27</sup> it does not appear that Winer was acting as an agent of “a candidate,
7 authorized committee, or political party committee” with respect to the PRP Communications.<sup>28</sup>
8 According to the respondents, Winer’s work for the Hirono Committee involved primarily 9 debate preparation, not communications, and was unrelated to his work for PRP State PAC.<sup>29</sup> In 10 fact, the Hirono Committee and Winer specifically deny that Winer had any authority to engage 11 in communications on the Hirono Committee’s behalf.<sup>30</sup> Further, the State Party states that it
12 was not involved in the non-partisan mayoral race in any capacity, a statement that would appear
13 to preclude involvement in the PRP Communications, through Winer or otherwise.<sup>31</sup> In light of 14 the denials, absent some additional evidence of Winer acting on behalf of the State Party or the 15 Hirono Committee with respect to the PRP Communications, or conveying information about 16 their plans, project, activities, or needs, that was material to the PRP Communications, the fact

<sup>28</sup> Id. § 109.21(d)(2). Likewise, the available information does not show that the PRP Communications were created, produced, or distributed at the “request or suggestion” of the State Party or the Hirono Committee, after one or more “substantial discussions” about the communication between PRP and the Hirono Committee or the State Party (through Winer or otherwise), or that Winer conveyed information about the Hirono Committee’s or the State Party’s plans, projects, activities, or needs that was material to the creation of the PRP Communications, such that either the “common vendor” or “former employee or independent contractor” standards were met. Id. §§ 109.21(d)(1), (d)(3), (d)(4)(iii), (d)(5)(ii).

1 that each of the State Party, the Hirono Committee, and PRP State PAC hired Winer as a
2 consultant does not, alone, support a reason to believe finding in this case.<sup>32</sup>

3 Accordingly, the Commission finds no reason to believe that Winer, PRP State PAC, the 4 State Party, and the Hirono Committee violated 52 U.S.C. §§ 30116 or 30118 by making or 5 receiving an in-kind contribution in the form of a coordinated communication.

6 B. State Party's Payments to Winer

7 The complaint also appears to allege that the State Party violated the Act because it paid
8 Winer $17,000 from state funds and $1,000 from federal funds for work it asserts was focused 9 primarily on the federal Hirono campaign.<sup>33</sup> The State Party states that "based on its 10 understanding of Winer's activity as an independent consultant, the Party's allocation of the 11 consultant fees to Winer was proper."<sup>34</sup>

12 Under the Act, amounts disbursed for federal election activity by a state committee of a 13 political party shall be made from funds subject to the limitations, prohibitions, and reporting
14 requirements of the Act — federal funds or a mixture of federal and Levin funds.<sup>35</sup> The Act and 15 Commission's regulations identify four types of federal election activity: (1) voter registration 16 activity during the period 120 days before a federal election; (2) voter identification, get-out-the-
17 vote activity, or generic campaign activity conducted in connection with an election in which a
18 candidate for federal office appears on the ballot; (3) a public communication that refers to a
19 clearly identified candidate for federal office and that promotes or supports, or attacks or opposes

1 a candidate for that office, regardless of whether the communication expressly advocates; and
2 (4) services provided during any calendar month by an employee of a state, district, or local party 3 committee who spends more than 25% of his or her compensated time during that month on 4 activities in connection with a federal election.<sup>36</sup>

5 The Complaint questions whether Winer spent more than 25% of his compensated time
6 for the State Party working on activities in connection with a federal election, and thus his 7 consulting fees should have been paid entirely in federal funds. Even assuming an independent
8 contractor like Winer is an "employee" for purposes of section 30125, according to the State
9 Party, Winer's work on the Coordinated Campaign benefited four federal candidates and 49 state
10 candidates.<sup>37</sup> Allocating Winer's work proportionally among federal and state candidates would 11 mean that approximately 7.5% of his wages were in connection with a federal election — well 12 below the 25% threshold, and in relatively close alignment with the allocation of payments to 13 Winer (5.5% from federal funds). Based on the limited information contained in the complaint, 14 there does not appear to be a sufficient basis to conclude that the State Party's payments to 15 Winer were inappropriate. Accordingly, based on the available record, the Commission
16 dismisses the allegation that the State Party violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125 by paying Winer with 17 non-federal funds.

<sup>37</sup> The State Party did not provide any materials with its response in this matter to support its method of allocating Winer's payments.

15 I. INTRODUCTION

16 This matter involves an allegation that Pacific Resource Partnership and John White in 17 his capacity as treasurer ("PRP State PAC"), a Hawaii state political committee, coordinated a
18 2012 independent expenditure campaign with the Democratic Party of Hawaii ("the State Party")
19 and Friends of Mazie Hirono and Carol Puetto in her capacity as treasurer ("Hirono

21 violation of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the "Act"). The allegation
22 is based on the fact that one individual, Andrew Winer, worked as a political consultant for PRP
23 State PAC, the State Party, and the Hirono Committee. The complaint appears to further allege 24 that the State Party violated the Act by paying Winer with nonfederal, as opposed to federal,

The Commission also dismisses the allegation that the State Party violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125, and closes the file.

II. FACTS

During the 2012 election cycle, political consultant Andrew Winer worked on campaigns for three different political organizations in Hawaii: PRP State PAC, a non-candidate political committee organized under Hawaii state election law;<sup>3</sup> the State Party; and the Hirono Committee.<sup>4</sup> Winer was a paid consultant for PRP State PAC and “performed a variety of services,” including helping to “develop its messaging in an independent expenditure campaign” in support of Kirk Caldwell in his race for mayor of Honolulu.<sup>5</sup> The strategy included a series of communications contrasting Caldwell and his opponent, including a door hanger and mailers which urged support for the “Democratic team” and featured images of Caldwell, President Obama, and Hirono (the “PRP Communications”).<sup>6</sup> According to PRP State PAC, the purpose of the PRP Communications, which were distributed in October and November 2012, was to use Obama and Hirono to get frequent voters to support Caldwell in the mayoral election.<sup>7</sup> PRP State PAC allocated the costs of the PRP Communications among the mentioned candidates and

3 In addition to his ongoing work for PRP State PAC, Winer began working for the State
4 Party as a consultant on its "Coordinated Campaign" following the August 2012 primary 5 election.<sup>9</sup> In this capacity, Winer was charged with "organizing and mobilizing volunteers to 6 canvass specific neighborhoods as well as organize sign-waving events," analyzing and targeting 7 precincts "where efforts were needed to support democratic candidates," and organizing
8 "meetings on get-out-the-vote ('GOTV') strategies to encourage a strong democratic turnout for 9 the general election and to ensure the success of the democratic ticket at the polls."<sup>10</sup> The State
10 Party states that it retained Winer as an independent consultant, not as an employee, and that it
11 allocated Winer's consulting fees according to his work on behalf of both federal and state
12 candidates.<sup>11</sup> According to the State Party, Winer's work on the Coordinated Campaign

7 A. Coordinated Communications

8 The complaint alleges that as a result of Winer's position as a vendor of political 9 consulting services to PRP State PAC, the State Party, and the Hirono Committee, the PRP
10 Communications were coordinated communications.<sup>17</sup> PRP State PAC and the Hirono
11 Committee each deny that there was a coordinated communication because the conduct prong of 12 the Commission's coordinated communication regulation was not met.<sup>18</sup> The State Party
13 generally denies the existence of any coordination between itself and PRP State PAC or the 14 Hirono Committee.<sup>19</sup> Winer filed a response that incorporates in its entirety the PRP State PAC

2 the mere fact of an independent contractor relationship with Winer – suggesting that the State
3 Party or the Hirono Committee was involved with the PRP Communications. Although it
4 appears that Winer was materially involved in decisions regarding the creation, production, and
5 distribution of the PRP Communications (such as the content, intended audience, and means of 6 communications),<sup>28</sup> it does not appear that Winer was acting as an agent of “a candidate,
7 authorized committee, or political party committee” with respect to the PRP Communications.<sup>29</sup>
8 According to the respondents, Winer’s work for the Hirono Committee involved primarily 9 debate preparation, not communications, and was unrelated to his work for PRP State PAC.<sup>30</sup> In 10 fact, the Hirono Committee and Winer specifically deny that Winer had any authority to engage 11 in communications on the Hirono Committee’s behalf.<sup>31</sup> Further, the State Party states that it
12 was not involved in the non-partisan mayoral race in any capacity, a statement that would appear
13 to preclude involvement in the PRP Communications, through Winer or otherwise.<sup>32</sup> In light of 14 the denials, absent some additional evidence of Winer acting on behalf of the State Party or the 15 Hirono Committee with respect to the PRP Communications, or conveying information about
16 their plans, project, activities, or needs, that was material to the PRP Communications, the fact

Likewise, the available information does not show that the PRP Communications were created, produced, or distributed at the “request or suggestion” of the State Party or the Hirono Committee, after one or more “substantial discussions” about the communication between PRP and the Hirono Committee or the State Party (through Winer or otherwise), or that Winer conveyed information about the Hirono Committee’s or the State Party’s plans, projects, activities, or needs that was material to the creation of the PRP Communications, such that either the “common vendor” or “former employee or independent contractor” standards were met. Id. §§ 109.21(d)(1), (d)(3), (d)(4)(iii), (d)(5)(ii).

1 that each of the State Party, the Hirono Committee, and PRP State PAC hired Winer as a
2 consultant does not, alone, support a reason to believe finding in this case.<sup>33</sup>

3 Accordingly, the Commission finds no reason to believe that Winer, PRP State PAC, the 4 State Party, and the Hirono Committee violated 52 U.S.C. §§ 30116 or 30118 by making or 5 receiving an in-kind contribution in the form of a coordinated communication.

6 B. State Party's Payments to Winer

7 The complaint also appears to allege that the State Party violated the Act because it paid
8 Winer $17,000 from state funds and $1,000 from federal funds for work it asserts was focused 9 primarily on the federal Hirono campaign.<sup>34</sup> The State Party states that "based on its 10 understanding of Winer's activity as an independent consultant, the Party's allocation of the 11 consultant fees to Winer was proper."<sup>35</sup>

12 Under the Act, amounts disbursed for federal election activity by a state committee of a 13 political party shall be made from funds subject to the limitations, prohibitions, and reporting
14 requirements of the Act — federal funds or a mixture of federal and Levin funds.<sup>36</sup> The Act and
15 Commission's regulations identify four types of federal election activity: (1) voter registration 16 activity during the period 120 days before a federal election; (2) voter identification, get-out-the-
17 vote activity, or generic campaign activity conducted in connection with an election in which a
18 candidate for federal office appears on the ballot; (3) a public communication that refers to a
19 clearly identified candidate for federal office and that promotes or supports, or attacks or opposes

1 a candidate for that office, regardless of whether the communication expressly advocates; and
2 (4) services provided during any calendar month by an employee of a state, district, or local party
3 committee who spends more than 25% of his or her compensated time during that month on 4 activities in connection with a federal election.<sup>37</sup>

5 The Complaint questions whether Winer spent more than 25% of his compensated time
6 for the State Party working on activities in connection with a federal election, and thus his 7 consulting fees should have been paid entirely in federal funds. Even assuming an independent
8 contractor like Winer is an "employee" for purposes of section 30125, according to the State
9 Party, Winer's work on the Coordinated Campaign benefited four federal candidates and 49 state
10 candidates.<sup>38</sup> Allocating Winer's work proportionally among federal and state candidates would 11 mean that approximately 7.5% of his wages were in connection with a federal election — well 12 below the 25% threshold, and in relatively close alignment with the allocation of payments to 13 Winer (5.5% from federal funds). Based on the limited information contained in the complaint, 14 there does not appear to be a sufficient basis to conclude that the State Party's payments to 15 Winer were inappropriate. Accordingly, based on the available record, the Commission
16 dismisses the allegation that the State Party violated 52 U.S.C. § 30125 by paying Winer with 17 non-federal funds.

<sup>38</sup> The State Party did not provide any materials with its response in this matter to support its method of allocating Winer's payments.
